SENATE WRANGLES OVER RESOLUTION TO ADMIT PUBLIC TO ARMS PARLEY

Senator Harrison Declares Secrecy Will Breed Suspicion in America

SECRET DIPLOMACY HIT HARD BLOW BY BORAH

"We Have Drifted Back to Old System", Idaho Senator Says

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Warning that the American people still think that something was put over on them because the Versailles treaty was hatched and adopted in secret, Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, renewed his demand in the senate today that there be open sessions of the forthcoming disarmament conference.

Harrison has an amendment to the pending deficiency bill, appropriating $200,000 for the conference. "Distrust will be immediately attached to the Washington conference and the suspicion of the people of the world aroused as to its real purposes if it is held behind locked doors and in secrecy," Harrison said.

"Propagandists and lobbyists are sure to be knocking at the door of the conference. The great munitions manufacturers who want war and not peace, the army and navy men who don't want any real reduction of naval and military establishments are certain to keep close to some of the details."

"Insidious, subterranean influences will be at work to defeat the world demand for the reduction of armament and the lightening of the enormous tax burden now imposed by great expenditures for arms without number," Harrison continued.

"Secret diplomacy has provoked every war from the Berlin congress to the opening of the world war and notwithstanding the bitter lessons of the world war, we have drifted back to the old system of secret diplomacy," said Senator Borah.

Borah stated the Harrison amendment provides for little more than an expression of opinion on the part of congress but that expression of opinion is essential. Senator Watson, Democrat, of Georgia, and Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, expressed the view that closed sessions of the Washington conference might accomplish more if the doors were thrown open to the public.

Chief Executive May Visit Shoals

George B. Christian, secretary to President Harding, has forwarded the following letter to Congressman Almon, acknowledging the latter's invitation to visit the Shoals when the Chief Executive comes to Alabama next fall:

THE WHITE HOUSE
Washington, August 15, 1921
My Dear Mr. Almon:

The President has asked me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of today, when you left with him here at the Executive Office, extending an invitation of the Chamber of Commerce of Florence, Ala., to visit Florence and Muscle Shoals. As he told you in his conference with you this morning, he hopes it may be possible to include Florence and Muscle Shoals in the itinerary of his contemplated trip to Alabama but he cannot make a definite promise to do so at this time. He asks me to assure you that he will bear your cordial invitation in mind when he takes up the question of arranging the details of his schedule.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE B. CHRISTIAN, JR.,
Secretary to the President.
Hon. Edward B. Almon,
House of Representatives.

PROMOTION SCHEME UNEARTHED IN MAIL BY WHICH BROKERS WOULD LOOT PUBLIC

Attempt to Induce Americans to Sink $100,000,000 in Foreign Bonds

MAILS ARE FLOODED WITH THE CIRCULARS

Secretary Mellon Holds Aloof From Expression on Exchange Situation

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, August 23.—A blue sky promotion scheme by which Americans were to be induced to sink at least $100,000,000 in investments in practically worthless municipal bonds of some of the bankrupt nations of Central Europe, has been discovered, according to information in the hands of the government today.

President Harding and his cabinet, sensing the danger involving American investors, today were considering measures to suppress these operations by warning which will render the operations of the promoters unsuccessful.

The United States mail today was flooded with circulars of brokers acting for investment brokers abroad, offering to sell American investors certain Polish municipal bonds for what purports to be a "song". Postmaster Hays is weighing the question whether the postal laws are sufficiently broad to attempt to check the sale of these bonds.

American promoters of the selling plans for Polish brokers represent to prospective buyers of their securities that they will sell Polish municipal bonds, supposedly worth 10,000 Polish marks to Americans for $19.85 in American cash, but any return from such bonds are to be paid out in American dollars, but in the currency of Poland. This plan would reduce the returns on the bonds to almost nothing.

Secretary Mellon held aloof from expression that would give hope of early improvement in foreign currency value. He suggested, however, that out of the coming disarmament conference there may come something that will lead to financial stabilization.

W. Benson, superintendent, announced today.

The enrollment is expected to be the heaviest this term than at any time previously and practically all arrangements have been made for the opening of the session, Mr. Benson stated.

Armed Miners Are Reinforced

(International News Service)
CHARLESTON, West Va., Aug. 23.—Reports this morning from Marmet, where armed miners have been assembling since last Friday, indicated that recruits received yesterday and last night have swelled the force to approximately 2,000. The reported march, planned on Charleston last night after the original plan to invade Mingo county had been abandoned, did not materialize. Local authorities remained alert and prepared to repel any such movement, but the night passed quietly.

Anti-Beer Measure Threatens Recess

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The anti-beer bill still hangs fire in the house, with the Stanley amendment prohibiting search and seizure as the sticking point.

The controversy over this bill threatens to disrupt the recess plan for some house leaders declare they will not recess until the bill is passed finally without the Stanley amendment. Senate leaders are willing to remain in session all summer, they say, rather than pass the bill in the form demanded by the house leaders.

Members of Bond Theft Gang Held

(International News Service)
CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—A series of sensational developments in the relations of a $3,000,000 bond theft trust was climaxed this afternoon by the surrender of Alva W. Harsham, of Milwaukee, one of the alleged ring leaders. Harsham made an amazing confession of high finance, including a statement that the gang was preparing to swindle a Washington man out of $800,000 at the time of their arrest. Eight men are now in custody, including Z. W. Davis, former millionaire president of the Winona Motor company, of Cleveland, O.

GRAND JURY PROBE OF PRIEST'S DEATH BEGIN TUESDAY IN JEFFERSON COUNTY

Numerous Witnesses Called to Shed Light on the Birmingham Tragedy

PRELIMINARY HEARING ALSO SET FOR TODAY

Rev. Stephenson Charged With Shooting to Death Father James E. Coyle

(International News Service)
BIRMINGHAM, August 23.—Investigation of the circumstances which led to the shooting of Father James E. Coyle, former pastor of St. Paul's Catholic church here, by Rev. Edward Stephenson on August 23, was begun this morning by the Jefferson county grand jury.

Numerous witnesses which have been summoned to present evidence on behalf of the state will be examined by the body until the killing is thoroughly probed. No information concerning the finding of the grand jury will be given until after the case is thoroughly investigated.

Witnesses examined this morning were: Sheriff Hartsfield, Ruth Stephenson Gussman, daughter of the minister accused of the shooting, Patrolman W. H. Snow and Deputy Sheriff Cole and Steve Wiggins.

Stephenson will be given a preliminary hearing to answer a charge of murder before Judge H. B. Abernathy, of the Jefferson county court of misdemeanors, this afternoon unless his attorneys apply for a continuance.

Stephenson is charged with shooting Father Coyle after the latter is alleged to have officiated at the marriage of Stephenson's daughter to Pedro Gussman, a Porto Rican and a member of the Catholic church.

CARMEN BALLOT FOR CANDIDATES

According to reports coming from H. C. Hutchison, local representative of the Brotherhood of Carmen, the convention went into election of officers Saturday but did not complete the task. Adding machines had to be requisitioned in connection with the counting of the votes. The following account of the voting and the result up to Saturday night was sent by Mr. Hutchison, as taken from the Toronto Globe:

The voting is conducted by roll call, each delegate rising and recording his vote, and, where there are several candidates nominated for a particular office, a good deal of time is occupied.

General President Martin F. Ryan, of Kansas City, was re-elected by acclamation. Delegates H. O. Holmgren of Chicago, and J. Kissner of Minneapolis, were proposed for the position, but both declined a contest.

Canadian is Elected

Assistant General President F. H. Knight was re-elected, though the following were also nominated: Delegates Thomas E. Hyland from Horton, Kan.; J. F. McGreevy, Paducah, Ky.; Frank Paquin, Chicago, and Frank McKenna, Vancouver and Cranbrook, B. C. The three last named promptly withdrew from nomination, leaving the duel between Messrs. Knight and Hyland.

Mr. Frank McKenna, of Cranbrook, B. C., was the only one nominated for the position of Canadian Vice-President, and was accordingly elected by acclamation.

Decatur Citizens Authorize Bonds For New School

Overwhelming Victory Registered for Issue and Three Mills Tax in Monday's Election

COUNCIL WILL IMMEDIATELY TAKE STEPS FOR THE SALE

Board of Education, at the Same Time, Will Work Out Details of Appropriation of Funds Derived From Bonds

The citizens of Decatur Monday overwhelmingly gave their approval of the issuance of bonds totalling $100,000 for repair of present school buildings and construction of a new high school and the levy of a three mills school tax to pay for the issue. The vote, as tabulated today, follows:

City hall box: (bond issue) 151 for; 20 against; (tax) 150 for; 21 against.

Courthouse box: (bond issue) 134 for; 17 against; (tax) 135 for; 18 against.

The next step in the school situation is up to the city council which immediately will begin consideration of the sale of the bonds. It is expected that the council will begin negotiations immediately with bond buyers, looking to the sale of the issue as soon as possible in order that the work on the school buildings may be started this winter.

Members of the school board and other city authorities today were unable to say when the work can be finished. Some hoped that the new building might be completed prior to the end of the present term, but little chance was seen for that result to be accomplished. All were of the opinion, however, that the beginning of the 1922-23 term would see the new high school finished.

While the council is discussing the sale of the issue, the board of education will take up the question of repairs and other details connected with the appropriation of the funds derived from the issue.

CLEAN UP SQUAD TO AID VETERANS PRESENT CLAIMS ON GOVERNMENT

Quick and Satisfactory Adjustment of All Claims is the Goal

HEADQUARTERS WILL BE AT COURTHOUSE

Squad Will Spend One Day to Complete Work Here

The Clean Up Squad, sent out by government agencies, the Red Cross and the American Legion in the Twin Cities on August 27, and will establish headquarters at the Court House. The squad will remain here one day, during which time, the members will work, with one end in view and that end is to get in touch with every ex-service man, who has a claim against the government, and set in motion the machinery to get quick and satisfactory adjustment of that claim.

The paramount idea of the Clean Up Squad is to cut red tape that has prevented hundreds of disabled veterans and ex-service men in general from receiving the compensation that the government is glad to give. In this work the Red Cross and the Legion have every assurance from the government of complete and whole hearted cooperation.

Under the plan of campaign, the Squad composed of experts who are thoroughly familiar with every detail of the workings of the War Risk Insurance Act and the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, will get in personal touch with every man who has a claim or who thinks he may have a claim, take up his case as an individual proposition, avoid lengthy and nerve wracking correspondence—and get results.

With that thought in view the Squad will visit centers in every state in the Southeast and before the campaign is concluded, every county in the section will be covered. It is believed that by bringing this opportunity right to the doors of the veterans every man entitled to compensation will get it and get it speedily.

The Squad furnishes the big opportunity for the veteran to have straightened out all his difficulties of compensation and vocational training and medical treatment right at home. It is, as well, the chance of many to find out if they have claims and if they have, to get them filed properly, so that response will be satisfactory and immediate.

To reduce trouble, delay, and expense to a minimum, the Squad will furnish each disabled veteran, who reports at squad headquarters, with transportation back home and meals and lodging until his business is completed.

Coffee County Wins First Suit

(Montgomery Bureau, Albany-Decatur Daily)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., August 23.—Coffee county won the first of the suits brought by dissatisfied tax payers against the tax assessments of that county, according to information received by the state tax commission and attorney-general's department Monday. W. M. Bailey, who brought a suit for an injunction preventing the tax officials of Coffee county, from collecting any taxes on the new records established by the state and county when the old ones were stolen, lost when Judge A. B. Foster of the circuit court sustained the state's demurrers.

The petitioner was given thirty days in which to amend his suit in order to give it standing in court. Bailey contended that the state and county could not collect the taxes because the records were not the legal tax records.

In the hearing the county was represented by Brunson and Saunders of Elba while the state was represented by Hugh White, special assistant attorney-general.

BOOK CANNOT TARNISH THE FAME OF WOODROW WILSON

William F. McCombs, who had the privilege of backing Woodrow Wilson's claims to high office and who was in turn made Chairman of the Democratic National committee by Mr. Wilson, some time before his death wrote a book entitled: "How I made Woodrow Wilson President."

It is regarded universally, as a distinct injustice to Mr. McCombs, that the book was ever given publicity. It should have been buried with his worn, tired body. Mr. McCombs was not at himself when he wrote the book. And one prominent writer says it "will utterly annihilate what reputation might have been left to McCombs." And right here is a good place to inquire what do those, who still wish to vilify Woodrow Wilson care about the reputation of Mr. McCombs?

The book in question has been scattered broadcast throughout the nation. It would seem that this malicious act is against the broken ex-President, and it reaches the limit. Not content to hound the great statesman as long as he was President, his enemies now strike at him, as a private citizen, now a maimed veteran of the world war, when absolutely no political or other advantage is to be gained. Not since the assassination of our three martyred Presidents, has such a gross injustice been offered to an American statesman, as is the publication of this posthumous production entitled: "How I made Woodrow Wilson President."

Those who suffer from a too exalted opinion of their own grandeur, as was evidently the case with the writer, as the title of his book would further indicate, are said to easily believe they are right about everything, and to believe they share in a large measure the attributes of Deity. It was very natural, therefore, for the National Committeeman, to feel that he was wrongfully treated by his creation, President Wilson, when it came to making high appointments, and the reception of advice as to how to run the government. The book says, Mr. Wilson was very unpopular in his last months as President of Princeton University, and it is distinctly stated that he was slated to be fired out of Princeton, and that Mr. McCombs got him the job as Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, so as to let him down easy! When it came time to run Mr. Wilson for the Democratic nomination for President his unpopularity was spoken of at length in the book, and it was claimed that his intellectual superiority alone saved him from the discard. After his nomination, the book quotes Mr. Wilson as having wired Mr. McCombs—"Let the Prophet fulfill his Prophecy," meaning as McCombs had predicted his (Wilson's) nomination and election, let him be chairman of the national committee.

Mr. McCombs seemed not to realize in the least, that when Mr. Wilson became President of the United States, he was responsible to the American people, and must use his own judgment, not that of just one, or any of his friends and supporters, unless such judgment coincided with his own. It does seem that the haters of Mr. Wilson could have let the book by McCombs perish, especially as they have played the vilification game so long and with such abandon. There was not a nook or corner of the earth into which such assassins of character as some publications did not go in their search for filth and falsehood to hurl at President Wilson. The Senate majority went the whole length of littleness and cowardice in their search for some evil thing to charge against the man, who has proven himself the first world-wide statesman of the English speaking tongue or any other language. Despite all insults that have been hurled at him, history will rise up and call Woodrow Wilson, blessed!

HENRY FORD AND MUSCLE SHOALS

The Muscle Shoals enterprise was aggressively denounced by what seemed to be a wide spread propaganda as an impossible proposition, worthless from every point of view, and merely a sink-hole for the Government's money. But no sooner has Henry Ford given life to what others have tried to kill than there suddenly crops up a vigorous propaganda to prove that Henry Ford's offer is entirely too small, that it would give him entirely too much power, and that it would involve the Government in further enormous expenditure.

It will be noted that this propaganda is being fostered by some water power interests in the South, and perhaps by some fertilizer interests and other vested interests. But the country should beware of this propaganda. It is based on selfish interests, on a desire to prevent the coming into the South of Henry Ford and his constructive power for utilizing the Muscle Shoals improvement with its enormous possible hydro-electric power and its facilities for making fertilizers and doing other things.

Most of the vested interests which are fighting the Ford offer already have as great a power in the South as is good for that section. It will be a misfortune for the South if the existing water power companies, or the manufacturing enterprises owning vast water powers, should be enabled to greatly increase the extent of their water power control in the South. It would be a tremendous disadvantage to the South if the opportunity for producing cheaper fertilizer offered by Mr. Ford should not be availed of.

Unless some entirely independent concern is able to make to the Government a very much better offer than the best offer that can be had from Mr. Ford, then Congress would be recreant to its responsibility if it did not utilize Mr. Ford's proposition, with such changes and amendments as it may be able to secure from him.

The Manufacturers Record, though bitterly opposed to Ford's pacifist views during the war, to his cranky "Peace Ship," and all the cranky fads, wants to see Henry Ford come into the South and do things on a scale commensurate with what he has done in Detroit. The Muscle Shoals situation offers him an opportunity greater than anything that he has accomplished at Detroit, and the vast interests which are fighting his proposition must make a very much better proposition, not only one which will be better for the Government but better for the South, or else in decency they should retire from the fight.—Manufacturers' Record.

ANYBODY BUT FORD

It is a peculiar fact that the powers seem to desire anybody in the world should operate the Muscle Shoals government plants besides Henry Ford.

It would appear that simply because Henry Ford has made an offer to take over the government plants every big business interest, every republican newspaper, and every republican politician has laid down every other piece of business in which they are interested to try to interest somebody in bidding against Ford for the Muscle Shoals plants. Just why this unusual desire to keep Ford from securing the plants is beyond the power of the ordinary intellect to fathom.

The entire government project was just on the point of being abandoned by the republicans and the government throwing away scores of millions of dollars which have been invested in the plants when along came Ford with his offer not only to pay the government interest on its investment but by the amortization process to eventually refund the government the entire amount expended on the plants.

Regardless of what Ford will make out of the enormous plants on the Tennessee river, and he is going to pay the government an equitable interest rate on its investment and also will be satisfied himself with making eight per cent on his investment, the sensible people of this country want some man to have the plants whom they believe is capable of developing them to their proper usage. The republicans in previous administrations have shown an absolute disregard of the people's interest in wasting millions and millions of dollars on invested properties simply because they were located in southern localities and it was the idea of the republicans to so abandon the great Tennessee river project. Just as soon as Henry Ford came along and made a reasonable offer for the use of the property, then the republicans started out to beat the highways and hedges and find somebody to compete with Ford for the enormous undertaking. The battlecry seems to be anything to keep Ford from getting Muscle Shoals.

The republicans have already shown an utter disregard for the public interest in matters of money and a few more examples of the magnitude of their Muscle Shoals effort will put them back where they were before Woodrow Wilson knocked King Dollar Mark off the throne and established a real democracy. The best thing the republicans can do for their own interest and for the interest of the United States of America is to accept Henry Ford's proposition or one equally as good and not beat about the bush finding some excuse for abandoning the project entirely, simply because it happens to be in the south.—Huntsville Telegram.

IT PAYS

One afternoon last week The Birmingham News carried a seven-column ad, depicting the pleasure of drinking iced coffee. A particular brand of Java was advertised, of course, as being especially delicious when served iced.

We wonder how many Birmingham husbands found their breakfast cup cold and clammy, with particles of ice floating around in the beverage. Whether the husbands liked it or not is not the question. Probably they did not. It's hard to change a man's habit. However, we are sure that a great many of them had the chance to express their views on the subject of iced coffee either at breakfast on the day following the ad, or at some other meal.

The ad paid the makers of the particular brand of coffee, as Birmingham housewives who decided on the strength of the ad, to try ice in coffee, didn't use the brand which they had on hand, but they sent out and got the brand that was advertised. If hubby liked coffee iced, all is well just the same, because the balance in the can which wife bought to try out will be consumed heated, and probably the head of the house will decide that the brand pleases, prepared in the usual style, so the customer is found just the same.

Whether iced coffee takes or not the advertiser will reap the benefits of his harvest, the seven-column ad.—Greenville Advocate.

If we were nearer to the destitute in heart, the famine districts in the East would not seem so far away.

If the wife did not have other lines on a fellow, besides the purse strings, it would not be so bad.

As taxes come down, business is going to higher and safer levels.

The wise men, or one of them at least has said that the uses of adversity are "sweet". Wonder what Ole Wisie would call honey?

Getting ones deserts is not nearly so comfortable as a good square meal.

Those interested in Muscle Shoals are doomed to wait for vacations to end, before they can again get excited as to whether Henry will get it in the neck or the Muscle Shoals.

Peagler is sentenced to be put to death in the Bulter county jail at Greenville Friday. His appeal for the changing of the sentence to life imprisonment was received by the governor Monday and was promptly referred to the board of pardons for investigation.

OUTFIELD ERRORS AID TWINS IN WIN OVER TRIPLETS BY SCORE OF 3 TO 1

Locals Bunch Hits and Squeeze Play With Errors for Victory

BACHELOR DESERVED TO GET A SHUTOUT

Underwood, Unable to Convince Umpire Thomas, Is Put Out of the Game

Taking advantage of errors in the visiting outfield, the Twins bunched hits with a squeeze play yesterday and romped to victory over the Triplets 3 to 1 in the first of the series here, the last home stand of the locals for the season.

Bachelor turned the Triplets back without a run in every inning save one and deserved a shutout in that frame. The visitor's lone tally came in the second when Leroy started with a lucky double back of second. His pop fly would have been an easy chance for Lewis, but Gilliland elected to try for the catch and in the resulting mix-up, nobody handled the offering and Leroy stopped at second.

The Twins began bombarding Payne in the first. After Lewis and McClain had been retired, McDuff scratched a hit to Bingham, the ball taking a bad hop just as it reached the shortstop. Payne caught McDuff on the bag with a snap throw and when Mac started to second, Lucas threw wild to Bingham. Mac taking third. He counted on Carter's scratch past Romine. Eak's single put Carter on third, but he was nailed at the plate on an attempted double steal, with Gilliland at the bat.

In the second, Lauderman hit over Tilton's head, the latter getting under the ball and then dropping it. The error netted Lauderman three bases. Johnston squeezing him home. McDuff hit a low liner to center, Elmo came tearing in and after grabbing the ball, rolled over on the ground. Umpire Thomas ruled the ball was trapped and McDuff was given another hit. Underwood was convinced it was a fair catch. He was unable to convince Thomas and his argument waxed so warm, the umpire sent the visitor's second sacker to the bench. Leroy went to second and Blissett to right.

The last local marker was added in the fourth. Eak's shot his second hit of the game, a single, to center. Elmo permitted the ball to get by him and Eak's stopped at third. Gilliland tracked a single to right and Eak scored. Lauderman snaked a hit to Romine. Gilliland tried to make two bases on the hit and was thrown out at third. Johnston singled to left or the hit and run, Lauderman going to third and Johnston to second on the throw in.

Bachelor fanned, Lewis walked and McClain brought the inning to a close with a pop to Leroy.

REALLY AN OLD, OLD STORY

The Younger Generation, It Would Appear, Has Always Been "Going to the Bow Wows."

Are the children of today going to the bow-wows, or is it just an appearance? Are the children of this world today worse in their generation than the children of yesterday? Let us take a census.

A volume of sermons printed in 1550 contains a wall from Dr. Lyman Beecher about "the terrible lack of parental discipline in these later days." Dr. Jonathan Edwards made the same gloomy remark a hundred years before, saying that children behaved rudely and lacked the chastisement he had received.

Going back two centuries we find the famous Hugh Latimer, chaplain to Edward VI, declaring that during his 50 years of observation the manners of boys, their development at church and their conduct toward parents had undergone a woeful decline.

John Knox remarked on the discouraging signs of the times as to parents' lack of authority over their sons. Going back to the Old Testament, it seems that the same doleful views prevailed among the Hebrews, for one of the prophets gives them this needed warning:

"Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days were better than these? Thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this."
So that, taking it all around, we are quite undisturbed about the present generation. It is probable that we were just the same little fools that they are—only a mere bit littler. We have forgotten.

BAN PLACED ON EXPLETIVE

Some Spanish Priests Forbid Use of Word "Caramba"—Good Story in That Connection.

There is a church in La Guaira, Venezuela, which is said to have been erected with the proceeds of fines imposed upon the people of the parish who profaned their conversation with the word "caramba"—the common oath among all classes of people—or with stronger expressions. The church is therefore called "La Iglesia de la Santissima Caramba."

The word caramba is meaningless, but it is constantly in the mouths of all people, without regard to sex or condition, and is not usually considered reprehensible. But now and then a pious priest will be found who prohibits its use among the sheep and lambs of his flock.

A story is told of three pious friars who were traveling a hot and dusty road one day, driving a donkey which bore their luggage. The beast became obstinate, and finally lay down in the dirt, much to the damage of their property. One of them, more impulsive than the rest, forgot himself so far as to utter the first syllable of the forbidden expletive, and said "Car!" The second exclaimed "Ram!" and the third "Ba!" which completed the unholly word, and thus expressed their sentiments jointly without imperiling their souls.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Odors in Apartments.

There are times in the city dwelling, especially in an apartment, when just before the arrival of guests the hostess is conscious of a deadly odor stealing over the scene.
Instead of relying on the incense burner which must be carried from room to room in such an emergency and which often sends out only a fleeting fragrance, it is a good plan to keep in hand a little oil of cinnamon. Fill a shallow vessel with water and place it on the stove. When it boils put in a teaspoonful of the cinnamon oil. A spicy odor will soon fill the rooms. The water should simmer slowly, but not boil violently, after the oil is added. It is said that oil of lavender and other fragrant oils will give the same result. It is rather amusing to keep one's method of perfuming the home a secret, as this will add to the individuality of one's setting.
Benjamin Franklin's father was a soap maker.

SOME WOULD SAY NEVER

French Law Wants to Know at What Age a Man Is Competent to Choose a Wife?

At what age does a man possess sufficient ability to be able to choose a wife?
According to the present French laws, remarks the New York Tribune, he is not considered capable until he reaches thirty years, and should he marry before that time he must obtain the consent of his parents. In 1915 and again in 1919 the chamber lowered the age to twenty-five, but each time the bill was rejected by the senate. Soon another attempt to alter the law will be made by Abbe Lemire, deputy for the Nord.

The abbe says that men who would make an unwise marriage at twenty-five would be just as liable to do the same thing at thirty. He also thinks that more men and women who have supposedly reached the age of discretion make more unhappy marriages than younger people.
"I certainly think a man is sufficiently mature by the time he is twenty-five, or even twenty-one, to enter into marriage upon his own responsibility. It seems ridiculous for a man to have to ask his parents' consent until he is thirty."

The Marchioness Townsend gives as her opinion that "by the time he is twenty-five if a man has bad tendencies they will have developed, or if he has good tendencies they will also have developed. It would certainly, in my opinion, be a good thing to lower the age at which a Frenchman attains his majority."

ARTIST'S MISSION IN LIFE

By Interpretation, He Must Unfold Beauty to Those Persons Not So Gifted as Himself.

All work has some element of the creative, but the artist must realize that it is art that brings everything to him, and that the best he can bring to art is sympathy, intelligence and skill in presenting it. The material has always been there and it is for him to develop the means of imparting it to others. The singer sings a song—but before he can deliver its message with his voice, the composer has visualized through a musical setting an interpretation of the poet—the poet has translated a phase of life, or emotion, that has come to him from reading or experience. Our knowledge and the mental processes that govern our actions are the result of recorded and unrecorded memories—and so on through an endless chain of evolution.

The artist's mission is to interpret the depth and breadth of the mysterious joys or sorrows of existence, real and imaginary, through music, poetry, sculpture, painting, the stage, or whatever his profession. In his interpretation he unfolds these beauties—to other men and women who may not be gifted with the mental or physical abilities to re-create them for themselves, but who can understand and enjoy them through the medium of the artist—and as his skill in that medium develops, his giving out of understanding increases.

Piccadilly a "Ruff."

Piccadilly, known the world over as a famous thoroughfare of London, received its name from a tavern several centuries ago. The tavern in its turn took the name from a tennis court that was near by, and much frequented by members of the king's household.

The tennis court acquired the name because of the number of both men and women who frequented it wearing a "piccadilly," or ruff.
The name, then, was originally the name of a shirred bit of silk, or other stiff material that was gathered along the edge of the cloak, bodice or jerkin, and brought together under the chin, forming an outstanding collar or ruff often six or eight inches wide, and in some cases dandies went to even greater extremes and extended their "piccadilly" a foot or more.
Queen Elizabeth made the ruff almost historical by her constant wearing of it at court functions, and to have her portrait painted.

Versatile Vegetable.

It is a blessing nowadays to discover an article of food that will serve several purposes. The cassava plant, referred to in the United States "Commerce Reports," certainly comes under the category. The tubers of this plant are put to many uses. First and foremost it is a vegetable, which is prepared for eating by boiling in plain water. It is also made into a coarse form of meal. Then the dry tuber is grated into another meal, which is made into bread. The juice is saved and boiled down, and on certain condiments being added cassareep is produced, which is the foundation of many sauces. Starch can also be made from the tuber.

Independence Hall.

Independence hall, Philadelphia, the central in what is known as the state house group, was begun in 1732, and was opened and first put to use in September, 1739, when William Allen, mayor and prominent merchant of Philadelphia, gave a dinner to the citizens. It was occupied in October of the same year by the legislature, of which Benjamin Franklin was clerk. The Liberty bell was placed in the state house steeple in June, 1753. Congress convened in Independence hall March 4, 1777, left on September 18, 1777, returned July 2, 1778, and continued to sit there until the close of the revolution.

Similarity.

"Sometimes you see a man," said Senator Sorghum, "who behaves toward his country the same as he does toward his wife. The more he says he loves her, the worse he seems willing to treat her."

COTTON MARKET CONTINUES ACTIVE

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, August 23.—The cotton market opening today was the strongest and most active in many weeks. Reports of continued high temperatures in the southwest, with numerous private complaints of crop damage inspired heavy commission buying, which advanced first prices 14 to 17 points. The rise, however, brought out active profit taking and Southern selling. Among the early factors of strength, besides the weather, was the strong stock market's firm cables and active support from the trade.
A good deal of October covering, both trade and speculative, took place. The market at the end of the first 15 minutes had lost none of its strength or activity and was fully 16 to 18 points over the previous close.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the First Presbyterian church, Decatur, for Lee Carothers, who died last week in Denver, Col. The Masons will have charge of the services and active pallbearers will be from the Masonic lodge. Honorary pallbearers will be: J. D. Wyker, Fred S. Hunt, James A. Nelson, Willis Morrow, Lee Hartung and Col. C. C. Harris.

Masons were called to meet at Rising Sun Lodge at 2:30 to attend the services.

Revealing Their Worth.

The true historical genius, to our thinking, is that which can see the nobler meaning of events that are near him, as the true poet is he who detects the divine in the casual; and we somewhat suspect the depth of his insight into the past, who cannot recognize the godlike of today under that disguise in which it always visits us.—Lowell.

Then He's Not Interesting.

It is not hard to arouse a man's interest by telling him it's his move, unless you indicate that he must move toward the cornfield or the iron works.—Houston Post.

BOOK CANNOT TARNISH THE FAME OF WOODROW WILSON

William F. McCombs, who had the privilege of backing Woodrow Wilson's claims to high office and who was in turn made Chairman of the Democratic National committee by Mr. Wilson, some time before his death wrote a book entitled: "How I made Woodrow Wilson President."

It is regarded universally, as a distinct injustice to Mr. McCombs, that the book was ever given publicity. It should have been buried with his worn, tired body. Mr. McCombs was not at himself when he wrote the book. And one prominent writer says it "will utterly annihilate what reputation might have been left to McCombs." And right here is a good place to inquire what do those, who still wish to vilify Woodrow Wilson care about the reputation of Mr. McCombs?

The book in question has been scattered broadcast throughout the nation. It would seem that this malicious act is against the broken ex-President, and it reaches the limit. Not content to hound the great statesman as long as he was President, his enemies now strike at him, as a private citizen, now a maimed veteran of the world war, when absolutely no political or other advantage is to be gained. Not since the assassination of our three martyred Presidents, has such a gross injustice been offered to an American statesman, as is the publication of this posthumous production entitled: "How I made Woodrow Wilson President."

Those who suffer from a too exalted opinion of their own grandeur, as was evidently the case with the writer, as the title of his book would further indicate, are said to easily believe they are right about everything, and to believe they share in a large measure the attributes of Deity. It was very natural, therefore, for the National Committeeman, to feel that he was wrongfully treated by his creation, President Wilson, when it came to making high appointments, and the reception of advice as to how to run the government. The book says, Mr. Wilson was very unpopular in his last months as President of Princeton University, and it is distinctly stated that he was slated to be fired out of Princeton, and that Mr. McCombs got him the job as Democratic candidate for Governor of New Jersey, so as to let him down easy! When it came time to run Mr. Wilson for the Democratic nomination for President, his unpopularity was spoken of at length in the book, and it was claimed that his intellectual superiority alone saved him from the discard. After his nomination, the book quotes Mr. Wilson as having wired Mr. McCombs—"Let the Prophet fulfill his Prophecy," meaning as McCombs had predicted his (Wilson's) nomination and election, let him be chairman of the national committee.

Mr. McCombs seemed not to realize in the least, that when Mr. Wilson became President of the United States, he was responsible to the American people, and must use his own judgment, not that of just one, or any of his friends and supporters, unless such judgment coincided with his own. It does seem that the haters of Mr. Wilson could have let the book by McCombs perish, especially as they have played the vilification game so long and with such abandon. There was not a nook or corner of the earth into which such assassins of character as some publications did not go in their search for filth and falsehood to hurl at President Wilson. The Senate majority went the whole length of littleness and cowardice in their search for some evil thing to charge against the man, who has proven himself the first world-wide statesman of the English speaking tongue or any other language. Despite all insults that have been hurled at him, history will rise up and call Woodrow Wilson, blessed!

HENRY FORD AND MUSCLE SHOALS

The Muscle Shoals enterprise was aggressively denounced by what seemed to be a wide spread propaganda as an impossible proposition, worthless from every point of view, and merely a sink-hole for the Government's money. But no sooner has Henry Ford given life to what others have tried to kill than there suddenly crops up a vigorous propaganda to prove that Henry Ford's offer is entirely too small, that it would give him entirely too much power, and that it would involve the Government in further enormous expenditure.

It will be noted that this propaganda is being faltered by some water power interests in the South, and perhaps by some fertilizer interests and other vested interests. But the country should beware of this propaganda. It is based on selfish interests, on a desire to prevent the coming into the South of Henry Ford and his constructive power for utilizing the Muscle Shoals improvement with its enormous possible hydro-electric power and its facilities for making fertilizers and doing other things.

Most of the vested interests which are fighting the Ford offer already have as great a power in the South as is good for that section. It will be a misfortune for the South if the existing water power companies, or the manufacturing enterprises owning vast water powers, should be enabled to greatly increase the extent of their water power control in the South. It would be a tremendous disadvantage to the South if the opportunity for producing cheaper fertilizer offered by Mr. Ford should not be availed of.

Unless some entirely independent concern is able to make to the Government a very much better offer than the best offer that can be had from Mr. Ford, then Congress would be recreant to its responsibility if it did not utilize Mr. Ford's proposition, with such changes and amendments as it may be able to secure from him.

ter offer than the best offer that can be had from Mr. Ford, then Congress would be recreant to its responsibility if it did not utilize Mr. Ford's proposition, with such changes and amendments as it may be able to secure from him.

The Manufacturers Record, though bitterly opposed to Ford's pacifist views during the war, to his cranky "Peace Ship," and all the cranky crowd on board of it, and to some of his other fads, wants to see Henry Ford come into the South and do things on a scale commensurate with what he has done in Detroit. The Muscle Shoals situation offers him an opportunity greater than anything that he has accomplished at Detroit, and the vast interests which are fighting his proposition must make a very much better proposition, not only one which will be better for the Government but better for the South, or else in decency they should retire from the fight.—Manufacturers' Record.

ANYBODY BUT FORD

It is a peculiar fact that the powers seem to desire anybody in the world should operate the Muscle Shoals government plants besides Henry Ford.

It would appear that simply because Henry Ford has made an offer to take over the government plants every big business interest, every republican newspaper, and every republican politician has laid down every other piece of business in which they are interested to try to interest somebody in bidding against Ford for the Muscle Shoals plants. Just why this unusual desire to keep Ford from securing the plants is beyond the power of the ordinary intellect to fathom.

The entire government project was just on the point of being abandoned by the republicans and the government throwing away scores of millions of dollars which have been invested in the plants when along came Ford with his offer not only to pay the government interest on its investment but by the amortization process to eventually refund the government the entire amount expended on the plants.

Regardless of what Ford will make out of the enormous plants on the Tennessee river, and he is going to pay the government an equitable interest rate on its investment and also will be satisfied himself with making eight per cent on his investment, the sensible people of this country want some man to have the plants whom they believe is capable of developing them to their proper usage. The republicans in previous administrations have shown an absolute disregard of the people's interest in wasting millions and millions of dollars on invested properties simply because they were located in southern localities and it was the idea of the republicans to so abandon the great Tennessee river project. Just as soon as Henry Ford came along and made a reasonable offer for the use of the property, then the republicans started out to beat the highways and hedges and find somebody to compete with Ford for the enormous undertaking. The battlecry seems to be anything to keep Ford from getting Muscle Shoals.

The republicans have already shown an utter disregard for the public interest in matters of money and a few more examples of the magnitude of their Muscle Shoals effort will put them back where they were before Woodrow Wilson knocked King Dollar Mark off the throne and established a real democracy. The best thing the republicans can do for their own interest and for the interest of the United States of America is to accept Henry Ford's proposition or one equally as good and not beat about the bush finding some excuse for abandoning the project entirely, simply because it happens to be in the south.—Huntsville Telegram.

IT PAYS

One afternoon last week The Birmingham News carried a seven-column ad, depicting the pleasure of drinking iced coffee. A particular brand of Java was advertised, of course, as being especially delicious when served iced.

We wonder how many Birmingham husbands found their breakfast cup cold and clammy, with particles of ice floating around in the beverage. Whether the husbands liked it or not is not the question. Probably they did not. It's hard to change a man's habit. However, we are sure that a great many of them had the chance to express their views on the subject of iced coffee either at breakfast on the day following the ad, or at some other meal.

The ad paid the makers of the particular brand of coffee, as Birmingham housewives who decided on the strength of the ad, to try ice in coffee, didn't use the brand which they had on hand, but they sent out and got the brand that was advertised. If hubby liked coffee iced, all is well just the same, because the balance in the can which wifey bought to try out will be consumed heated, and probably the head of the house will decide that the brand pleases, prepared in the usual style, so the customer is found just the same.

Whether iced coffee takes or not the advertiser will reap the benefits of his harvest, the seven-column ad.—Greenville Advocate.

ANITA STEWART IN

"SOWING THE WIND"

In announcing Anita Stewart in her latest First National photoplay, "Sowing the Wind," the management of the Princess theatre feels perfectly safe in assuring its patrons of seeing this popular screen actress, at her very best. In fact it is agreed among critics that this is one of her most notable contributions to the silent stage and it is regarded as certain to increase her very large following extensively. If Miss Stewart has ever lacked the proper opportunity before to give her talents full scope, she is given this chance in "Sowing the Wind." As she portrays a role requiring the most consummate skill as an all-around interpreter of the dramatic art in its highest form. All fans who like really human stories in which the star delineates character from a purely human standpoint will like Miss Stewart in this excellent picture which will be the attraction at the Princess theater Wednesday and Thursday.

"A Night in Paris," musical comedy and Vaudeville, under auspices of Lloyd Knight, will be produced at the Princess Theater by local talent on Friday, September 2. A number of prominent young men and women will be included in the cast and a full house is anticipated.

DARING BOY ESCAPES FROM TRAIN

(International News Service)
CALAIS, Me., August 23.—Milton Hanley, escaped prisoner, must be given credit for his nerve.

Despite the fact that his feet were shackled, while on the way to serve five years in the Breston, N. B., prison, he leaped from an express train speeding at sixty miles an hour and made his escape. Hanley was in custody of a sheriff. When the officer's attention was distracted for a moment Hanley made a spectacular jump through a car window at Harvey, N. B. Poses have so far found no trace of him. Hanley, who is twenty years old, had been convicted of breaking and entering a store at St. Stephen, N. B.

AID TWINS IN WIN OVER TRIPLETS BY SCORE OF 3 TO 1

Locals Bunch Hits and Squeeze Play With Errors for Victory

BACHELOR DESERVED TO GET A SHUTOUT

Underwood, Unable to Convince Umpire Thomas, is Put Out of the Game

Taking advantage of errors in the visiting outfield, the Twins bunched hits with a squeeze play yesterday and romped to victory over the Triplets 3 to 1 in the first of the series here, the last home stand of the locals for the season.

Bachelor turned the Triplets back without a run in every inning save one and deserved a shutout in that frame. The visitor's loss tally came in the second when Leroy started with a lucky double back of second. His pop fly would have been an easy chance for Lewis, but Gilliland elected to try for the catch and in the resulting mix-up, nobody handled the offering and Leroy stopped at second. He went to third on Bingham's infield out and scored on Tilton's sacrifice fly.

The Twins began bombarding Payne in the first. After Lewis and McClain had been retired, McDuff scratched a hit to Bingham, the ball taking a bad hop just as it reached the shortstop. Payne caught McDuff on the bag with a snap throw and when Mac started to second, Lucas threw wild to Bingham. Mac taking third. He counted on Carter's scratch past Romine. Eak's single put Carter on third, but he was sailed at the plate on an attempted double steal, with Gilliland at the bat.

In the second, Lauderdale hit over Tilton's head, the latter getting under the ball and then dropping it. The error netted Lauderdale three bases. Johnston squeezing him home. In the third, after two were out, McDuff hit a low liner to center, Elmcame tearing in and after grabbing the ball, rolled over on the ground. Umpire Thomas ruled the ball was trapped and McDuff was given another hit. Underwood was convinced it was a fair catch. He was unable to convince Thomas and his argument waxed so warm, the umpire sent the visitor's second sacker to the bench. Leroy went to second and Blissett to right.

The last local marker was added in the fourth. Eaks shot his second hit of the game, a single, to center. Elmc permitted the ball to get by him and Eaks stopped at third. Gilliland cracked a single to right and Eaks scored. Lauderdale snaked a hit to Romine. Gilliland tried to make two bases on the hit and was thrown out at third. Johnston singled to left or the hit and run, Lauderdale going to third and Johnston to second on the throw in.

Bachelor fanned, Lewis walked and McClain brought the inning to a close with a pop to Leroy.

REALLY AN OLD, OLD STORY

The Younger Generation, It Would Appear, Has Always Been "Going to the Bow Wows."

Are the children of today going to the bow-wows, or is it just an appearance? Are the children of this world today worse in their generation than the children of yesterday? Let us take a census.

A volume of sermons printed in 1850 contains a wall from Dr. Lyman Beecher about "the terrible lack of parental discipline in these later days." Dr. Jonathan Edwards made the same gloomy remark a hundred years before, saying that children behaved rudely and lacked the chastisement he had received.

Going back two centuries we find the famous Hugh Latimer, chaplain to Edward VI, declaring that during his 50 years of observation the manners of boys, their development at church and their conduct toward parents had undergone a woeful declination.

John Knox remarked on the discouraging signs of the times as to parents' lack of authority over their sons. Going back to the Old Testament, it seems that the same doleful views prevailed among the Hebrews, for one of the prophets gives them this needed warning:

"Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days were better than these? Thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this."

So that, taking it all around, we are quite undisturbed about the present generation. It is probable that we were just the same little fools that they are—only a mere bit littler. We have forgotten.

BAN PLACED ON EXPLETIVE

Some Spanish Priests Forbid Use of Word "Caramba"—Good Story in That Connection.

There is a church in La Guaira, Venezuela, which is said to have been erected with the proceeds of fines imposed upon the people of the parish who profaned their conversation with among all classes of people—or with stronger expressions. The church is therefore called "La Iglesia de la Santissima Caramba."

The word caramba is meaningless, but it is constantly in the mouths of all people, without regard to sex or condition, and is not usually considered reprehensible. But now and then a pious priest will be found who prohibits its use among the sheep and lambs of his flock.

A story is told of three pious friars who were traveling a hot and dusty road one day, driving a donkey which bore their luggage. The beast became obstinate, and finally lay down in the dirt, much to the damage of their property. One of them, more impulsive than the rest, forgot himself so far as to utter the first syllable of the forbidden expletive, and said "Car!" The second exclaimed "Ram!" and the third "Ba!" which completed the unholly word, and thus expressed their sentiments jointly without impiling their souls—Philadelphia Ledger.

Odors in Apartments.

There are times in the city dwelling, specially in an apartment, when just before the arrival of guests the hostess is conscious of a deadly odor stealing over the scene.

Instead of relying on the incense burner which must be carried from room to room in such an emergency and which often sends out only a fleeting fragrance, it is a good plan to keep on hand a little oil of cinnamon. Fill a shallow vessel with water and place it on the stove. When it boils put in a teaspoonful of the cinnamon oil. A spicy odor will soon fill the rooms. The water should simmer slowly, but not boil violently, after the oil is added. It is said that oil of lavender and other fragrant oils will give the same result. It is rather amusing to keep one's method of perfuming the home a secret, as this will add to the individuality of one's setting.

Benjamin Franklin's father was a soap maker.

SOME WOULD ANSWER NEVER

French Law Wants to Know at What Age a Man is Competent to Choose a Wife?

At what age does a man possess sufficient ability to be able to choose a wife?

According to the present French laws, remarks the New York Tribune, he is not considered capable until he reaches thirty years, and should he marry before that time he must obtain the consent of his parents. In 1918 and again in 1919 the chamber lowered the age to twenty-five, but each time the bill was rejected by the senate. Soon another attempt to alter the law will be made by Abbe Lemaire, deputy for the Nord.

The abbe says that men who would make an unwise marriage at twenty-five would be just as liable to do the same thing at thirty. He also thinks that more men and women who have supposedly reached the age of discretion make more unhappy marriages than younger people.

"I certainly think a man is sufficiently mature by the time he is twenty-five, or even twenty-one, to enter into marriage upon his own responsibility. It seems ridiculous for a man to have to ask his parents' consent until he is thirty."

The Marchioness Townsend gives as her opinion that "by the time he is twenty-five if a man has bad tendencies they will have developed, or if he has good tendencies they will also have developed. It would certainly, in my opinion, be a good thing to lower the age at which a Frenchman attains his majority."

ARTIST'S MISSION IN LIFE

By Interpretation, He Must Unfold Beauty to Those Persons Not So Gifted as Himself.

All work has some element of the creative, but the artist must realize that it is art that brings everything to him, and that the best he can bring to art is sympathy, intelligence and skill in presenting it. The material has always been there and it is for him to develop the means of imparting it to others. The singer sings a song—but before he can deliver its message with his voice, the composer has visualized through a musical setting an interpretation of the poet—the poet has translated a phase of life, or emotion, that has come to him from reading or experience. Our knowledge and the mental processes that govern our actions are the result of recorded and unrecorded memories—and so on through an endless chain of evolution.

The artist's mission is to interpret the depth and breadth of the mysterious joys or sorrows of existence, real and imaginary, through music, poetry, sculpture, painting, the stage, or whatever his profession. In his interpretation he unfolds these beauties—to other men and women who may not be gifted with the mental or physical abilities to re-create them for themselves, but who can understand and enjoy them through the medium of the artist—and as his skill in that medium develops, his giving out of understanding increases.

Piccadilly a "Ruff"

Piccadilly, known the world over as a famous thoroughfare of London, received its name from a tavern several centuries ago. The tavern in its turn took the name from a tennis court that was near by, and much frequented by members of the king's household.

The tennis court acquired the name because of the number of both men and women who frequented it wearing a "piccadilly," or ruff. The name, then, was originally the name of a shirred bit of silk, or other stiff material that was gathered along the edge of the cloak, bodice or jerkin, and brought together under the chin, forming an outstanding collar or ruff often six or eight inches wide, and in some cases dandies went to even greater extremes and extended their "piccadilly" a foot or more.

Queen Elizabeth made the ruff almost historical by her constant wearing of it at court functions, and to have her portrait painted.

Versatile Vegetable.

It is a blessing nowadays to discover an article of food that will serve several purposes. The cassava plant, referred to in the United States "Commerce Reports," certainly comes under the category. The tubers of this plant are put to many uses. First and foremost it is a vegetable, which is prepared for eating by boiling in plain water. It is also made into a coarse form of meal. Then the dry tuber is grated into another meal, which is made into bread. The juice is saved and boiled down, and on certain condiments being added, cassaree is produced, which is the foundation of many sauces. Starch can also be made from the tuber.

Independence Hall.

Independence hall, Philadelphia, the central in what is known as the state house group, was begun in 1732, and was opened and first put to use in September, 1739, when William Allen, mayor and prominent merchant of Philadelphia, gave a dinner to the citizens. It was occupied in October of the same year by the legislature, of which Benjamin Franklin was clerk. The Liberty bell was placed in the state house steeple in June, 1753. Congress convened in Independence hall March 4, 1777, left on September 18, 1777, returned July 2, 1778, and continued to sit there until the close of the revolution.

Similarity.

"Sometimes you see a man," said Senator Sorghum, "who behaves toward his country the same as he does toward his wife. The more he says he loves her, the worse he seems willing to treat her."

COTTON MARKET CONTINUES ACTIVE

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, August 23.—The cotton market opening today was the strongest and most active in many weeks. Reports of continued high temperatures in the southwest, with numerous private complaints of crop damage inspired heavy commission buying, which advanced first prices 14 to 17 points. The rise, however, brought out active profit taking and Southern selling. Among the early factors of strength, besides the weather, was the strong stock market, firm cables and active support from the trade.

A good deal of October covering, both trade and speculative, took place. The market at the end of the first 15 minutes had lost none of its strength or activity and was fully 10 to 18 points over the previous close.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the First Presbyterian church, Decatur, for Lee Carothers, who died last week in Denver, Col. The Masons will have charge of the services and active pallbearers will be from the Masonic lodge. Honorary pallbearers will be: J. D. Wyker, Fred S. Hunt, James A. Nelson, Willis Morrow, Lee Hartung and Col. C. C. Harris.

Masons were called to meet at Rising Sun Lodge at 2:30 to attend the services.

Revealing Their Worth.

The true historical genius, to one thinking, is that which can see the nobler meaning of events that are near him, as the true poet is he who detects the divine in the casual; and we somewhat suspect the depth of his insight into the past, who cannot recognize the godlike of today under that disguise in which it always visits us.—Lowell.

Made Him Look Small.
A young and newly married couple were entertaining their friends, and among the guests was one whose continued rudeness made him extremely objectionable to the rest of the company. His conduct, although most unbearable, was put up with for some time, until at supper he held up on his fork a piece of meat which had been served to him, and in a vein of intended humor, he looked round and remarked:
"Is this pig?"
This immediately drew forth the remark from a quiet-looking individual sitting at the other end of the table:
"Which end of the fork do you refer to?"

Where the Fish Swam.
There are rich fishing banks of huge extent around Iceland, but the greatest are around Newfoundland, and are so rich that fishing vessels congregate there from America and France, as well as Great Britain.
These banks are very interesting, for they are shallows which overhang the abyssal depths which fall quite close by to as much as 4,000 fathoms, or more than four miles sheer depth.
There are fine banks all along the Greenland coast, and plenty of fish on them. But here trawling is impossible, for the icebergs have covered the bottom with enormous boulders.

Perquisites.
"There are very few perquisites nowadays,"
"I'm glad of it," replied Senator Sorghum. "Perquisites in the old days were regarded by too many penurious people as an excuse for holding a public servant down to an inadequate salary."
Cholera in the Crimea recently killed 1200 people.

HUMAN EYE SELDOM PERFECT
Few persons, perhaps, realize that they are so much right or left-eyed as they are right or left-handed, remarks the Cincinnati Enquirer.
Sit down in a chair and fix your attention on some object on the other side of the room. Quickly hold your finger up-right in front of the object and instantly shut your eyes. Then, without moving your head or your finger, open your eyes one at a time. If when you open your right eye you find your finger directly in front of the object, you are right-eyed. In that case you will find your finger very much to the right of the object when you open your left eye.
If you are right-handed you will most probably find that you are right-eyed.
This is due to the fact that of the two halves of your brain one is slightly more developed than the other. And the organs and limbs on that side of your body which is controlled by the more-developed half are able to carry out your wishes more easily and quickly than those of the other side.
The Progress of Eve.
"But these are Parisienne!" cried the French archeologist when he came upon the graven images of the ladies who adorned the Cretan court at least 4,000 years ago. The marvelous tombs just brought to light in France, though but half the age, teach the same lesson. "The false plait of hair and the many small articles found in the tombs," says the reporter, "prove that women of the First century, even though they were only peasants, were every whit as careful of their personal appearance as are those of today." We talk of the advance of woman, and it would be impolite to suggest that she does not advance; but other things advance with her, and Adam and the apple and the serpent will probably still be there at the end of the story as they were at the beginning.—London Daily N. Y.

Found a Singing Crow.
The great crow of the North, a bird as large as a raven or a young buzzard, is a talented singer. Most crows have a raucous cry, but this black bird, who appears so often on the totem poles, is a singer.
R. P. Bonham tells of his first experience with the great crow of Alaska. A party were ashore looking over an old Indian village when suddenly a golden voice broke forth in melody. The nearest bird to them was a great crow, and in a jesting way Bonham assured his companions that it was this crow that was singing, thinking to have some fun with the party. But to his surprise he was proved a truth-teller, for while they all watched the bird opened his spacious mouth. Instead of the expected "Caw, caw," a rippling flood of song burst forth.—Portland Oregonian.

Two Kinds of Freedom.
There are two freedoms—the false, where a man is free to do what he likes; the true, where a man is free to do what he ought.—Charles Kingsley.

TRAGEDIES TRACED TO OIL

Pipe Lines and Overflows Responsible for the Deaths of Many Animals and Birds.

That almost unerring instinct which carries animals through grave dangers has led in many instances in the Midway and Sunset oil fields of California to their undoing. Chief among such victims are rabbits and water fowl.

A jackrabbit and a cottontail find a nice round, smooth hole. There are many such in the oil fields where oil piping is a necessity for the transportation of oil to the refineries. The rabbits decide to set up housekeeping there. The cottontail desires a permanent home and the jackrabbit wants a refuge safe from malevolent man.

Soon they discover their habitat is being moved. No doubt they are frightened, but they instinctively stay within their retreat. One end of the hole is closed. Even then they do not leave. Soon the other end of the hole is darkened. Then it is darkness eternal for the furry pair.

Some time later it is discovered that a newly laid oil pipe line is choked. After great labor the line is disjunct and the remains of many rabbits removed. Thousands of rabbits have been thus exterminated in the oil fields.

The death rate among waterfowl is even greater. Again, as with the rabbits, instinct leads them to certain destruction. Every little lake of oil in the vicinity of a gusher is a trap for the unthinking birds. At twilight and dawn these far-colored lakes appear as bodies of water to the deluded fowl.

Plant "Dog In the Manger."

Quite a number of plants seem to have developed something very like a consciousness, enabling them to divine the best way of circumventing the encroachments of their neighbors.

A remarkable instance of this is seen in connection with the common bramble, when, as is often the case, it is found straggling over a pile of stones or up against a roughly-built wall. In such circumstances the plant has the power to turn its growing roots into clubbed roots, which completely fill the crevices where soil is to be found, and effectively keep competitors out.

Lucky Kid.

Bud was brought to the barbers every week to have his hopped hair trimmed. This always was a terrible ordeal for him. One day he was called into his mother's room to see the new baby. After making a mental note of the fact that its head was bald, he said enviously: "Gee, my baby sister won't have to go to a barber."

NEW QUICK WAY TO PUT ON FIRM FLESH

Thousands of weak, thin, pale and sickly people are now quickly putting on solid flesh and regaining rugged health and strength in an entirely new way.

This way is by taking vitamins in to their systems. Vitamins are a mysterious living substance, found to be absolutely necessary for perfect daily health. But most of our foods are lacking in them—that is why so many of us become thin and run-down.

Yeast has been found to contain billions of vitamins and is bringing incredible results in putting good flesh and muscle on thin people. No need to eat yeast cakes—simply take ironized yeast tablets, containing iron and highly concentrated brewer's yeast, the most efficient form of yeast. Pleasant to take—brings quick results.

Another Albany Case

It Proves That There's A Way Out for Many Suffering Albany Folks. Just another report of a case in Albany. Another typical case: Kidney ailments relieved in Albany with Doan's Kidney Pills.

J. W. Ezell, 1301 Fourth Avenue, says: "My kidneys became affected, I believe, from a cold and sharp pains often took me in the small of my back. When I stooped or lifted anything, I would get sudden twinges through my kidneys at night. Mornings I arose unrefreshed and was usually tired. I had headaches, dizzy spells and spots continually passed before my eyes. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box and used them as directed. Two boxes entirely cured me."

The above statement was given April 28, 1911 and on February 28, 1918, Mr. Ezell said: "I have had no return of kidney trouble since taking Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago and I cheerfully confirm the statement I gave at that time."

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Roof gardens and midnight shows of New York City have had another blow. Just after they have rallied from the shock of prohibition enforcement and decided that maybe they might get good enough music and food and entertainers so that a thorough sober public could still enjoy them, along comes this! The dress makers have resolved to sell cloth on a merit alone and cut out the entertaining of out-of-town buyers. Not even a musicians' strike could hit the white light restaurateurs as heavy a blow as that. Two hundred representatives of the dress industries in solemn conclave the other day sounded that knell of the buyers' gaiety. And kerpink! went great lots of possible diners and audiences.

Our city hasn't yet concluded whether or not it can reconcile carvings of greedy-faced men and dollar signs and tragic women with the spirit of church architecture. It has been several days now since Manhattan suddenly made the discovery of these things cut into the stone of St. Thomas' church and the fact that they have all been there for fifteen years without ever being noticed does not serve to placate the tempest. The stand taken by the architects that these things are symbols just as appropriate to our times as were the gargoyles on famous old cathedrals of Europe doesn't quite satisfy the average mind. New York is divided into pretty much wrought up factions clamoring for and against the fitness of such things. One of the prominent clergymen, who has refused to commit himself on the matter, says cheerfully "It's something to get this city so excited about anything connected with the church. Maybe it will get into the habit of looking inside often."

Miss Mabel Cratty, of New York, who is the acting head of all Y. M. C. A. organizations in this country, sails this month to visit the branches of the organization which are flourishing in the Orient. Miss Cratty, whose title is General Secretary of the National Board, will spend four or five months in China and Japan, where 10,500 members have been drawn into the Y. W. since its organization in those countries in 1905 and 1906: Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Miss Mary Mooley, President of Mt. Holyoke College both members of the National Board—are sailing on the same boat, Mrs. Rockefeller accompanies her husband, whose journey is made for the purpose of attending the dedication in Peking of the medical school which the Rockefeller foundation has had so large a part in making possible. Both Mrs. Rockefeller and Miss Mooley will give part of their time to visiting the Association work in both Japan and China. The organizations in China and Japan are made up largely of student members, and work in close touch with the Christian churches there. They are training girls for business and the professions, as they do here, but because of the recent entrance of women into factories, the Association finds a great deal to do along the lines of working for protection of women in industry, specially in the direction of educating public opinion. Much emphasis is given, too, to the matter of physical education and hygiene. There are 74 American secretaries in the Y. W. work in China, 34 Chinese, and five of other nationalities.

Whatever we may say about our police force and their occasional failures and their circles of politics, once in a while one of them does arise to the pinnacle of giving us a thrill. Patrolman John A. Curry did that just the other day. It wasn't that he stopped a bad runaway and got seriously hurt doing it. We just expect things like that. But the way he did it! No sawing on the reins or any other indirect means for this brawny guardian. He grabbed the horses hind legs in both arms and held onto them for one whole block until the horse finally gave us trying to run without those legs and fell flat. Charles Carsten, only 18 years old, but an ex-soldier, added to the drama by jumping astride the horse's back while he was running. It was the most spectacular thing New York has seen since we got so systematic and machinery-bound with motor busses and traffic rules.

The Newport set of New York society is considerable wrought up or amused, according to temperament by the nonchalance of an erstwhile of that fashionable resort. She is a widow and went in with another widow of the same set on a lot of household expenses and promissory notes. Something went wrong with their finances and they are both being sued. Fortunately—for her—the first mentioned lady had left for Europe and was comfortable encoined on the other side when the lawsuits broke. Her friends cabled her asking her to come back and take her share of the responsibility. Whereupon the fortunate one cabled back, "I have heard of the suit. Best love."

Handsome Home Wrecked by Fire

(Special to The Daily)
HARTSELLE, Ala., Aug. 23.—Fire at an early hour this morning destroyed the home of William Childers on South Highlands. Owing to the early hour of the blaze there were not very many who knew of it until the house was gone. Much of the household effects were saved, however. The origin of the fire was an oil stove, it is believed. Mr. Childers had just completed this home, and the loss falls heavily on him.

To Remove Corns.

Corns may be readily removed by soaking the feet from 15 to 20 minutes in warm water, softened by a few drops of violet ammonia or of benzoin. If this is not effective, bind a slice of lemon on the toes nightly. After three or four applications the corn will come off with very little trouble.

SAYS WAR HELPED RELIGION

Big Fight Made Soldiers Better Men, Is Assertion Made by Man Who Knows Them.

The American soldier came out of the war with more religion than he went in, according to Rev. Henry Russell Talbot, canon of the National cathedral at Washington, who arises to defend the doughboy from the label that the "war ruined him."

"He is a better man for having been in the army," asserts the canon, referring to the veteran, the Stars and Stripes states.

Canon Talbot was senior chaplain of the First division of the American expeditionary forces. In a communication to national headquarters of the American Legion at Indianapolis he admits the American, as he saw him in France, was "uncommonly timid in the exercise of his religion. He was frightened at his own religious shadow or he might have been grossly ignorant of the content and practice of his religion."

But, as the First division's senior chaplain, the canon was in charge of all the private belongings of the 1,800 Americans killed in the ten days' fighting in the Argonne, and in nine out of every ten of the men's kits found a crucifix, scapular, prayerbook or testament. "And in those days," Canon Talbot writes, "the First division was not carrying anything it did not deem essential."

"There was a kind of collectivism which outruns the ordinary standards of honesty," declares the canon, "but underneath there was implicit, if not explicit, reverence for the Son of Man."

REVEAL THEIR ARMY TRAINING

Ex-Service Men Instinctively Line Up When a Crowd Is Waiting to Be Served.

Army training still manifests itself in civilian life, and former soldiers automatically fall into line when they must wait to be served. In the army the men spent a great deal of their time waiting in line for mess, drawing stuff from the supply sergeant and a dozen other purposes.

The old army training revealed itself strongly during the recent hot spell at the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., when apparently most of the 10,000 members sought to take advantage of the swimming pool. Crowds of young men stormed the locker rooms each evening. The ex-service men set the example by lining up and taking their turns to reach the gate. As each elevator disembarked its load the former soldiers automatically went to the rear. Younger men who had not had this training and sought to edge in far up the line were promptly pulled out and sent to their station. No ex-service man who has stood in line to draw a pair of socks or get a mess kit full of "slum" will permit anyone to get ahead of him.

Varying Strength of Sunlight

There is practically no such thing as overlighting, writes J. H. Kurlander, in describing for the General Science Quarterly a series of tests made by the lighting service department of the Edison lamp works. He adds: "Investigation of places which are said to be overlighted will usually show that, if anything, they are glaringly underlighted."

These tests showed that sunlight in an open field measures 8,000-foot candle power (which means that it gives the illumination that would be given by 8,000 candles a foot distant). Sunlight in a street between buildings measures 3,000-foot candles. Shadow in a street between buildings measures 300; under a tree in the open, 500. The light on an office desk next to a south window has an intensity of 110-foot candles; one ten feet in, 70, and one 18 feet in, 50. At inside benches between two exposures only 20.

NEWS OF HARTSELLE

One of the Greatest revivals of the season closed at Forest Chapel last Sunday, with ninety five conversions. Fifty-three of this number went to the above church. The others were registered as members of other churches of the county. The pastor, Rev. A. S. Osborn was assistant in the meeting by Rev. John R. Carwife of Falkville, R. L. Bennett of Vineyard and charge of the choir.

This old churchground has been the scene of many stirring revivals in days gone by, the people worshipping there as far back as 1805. It was not until 1820 that a church organization was accomplished and meeting house built. Many graves in the old church yard date as far back as 1805, the tombstone standing as mute evidence of the century and more that has gone by since the interment of these pioneers.

This church has the record perhaps of turning out more preachers than any other country church in the country, many of them filling the pulpits of the larger churches in the cities.

The Morgan County High school will open its doors for another term next Monday. The principal, Prof. J. H. Riddle, announces that everything is in readiness for one of the very best years work of its history. The teachers will arrive this week, and preliminary examinations will be held on the opening day.

Troop A—1st Alabama Cavalry returned home from the Anniston encampment Sunday evening much fatigued, but proud of the record the troop made during the two weeks of practice. Many words of commendation were passed on the appearance and morale of the men, and the troop was selected as the escort to the Governor during his visit there.
